

A student from Hilliard Darby High School speaks about equality at Genoa Park in downtown Columbus Sunday, April 2 prior to the Interfaith March for Peace and Justice. The march was organized by Greg Davis, son of First Community Church members Barb and Terry Davis. Several hundred people of all faiths attended, including many from FCC. The march began near COSI and ended at Gavel Park, on the steps of the Ohio Supreme Court Building.

Many Faiths, One March

Interfaith march in Columbus promotes freedom to coexist

Dr. Deborah Lindsay (center) joins other faith leaders to begin the march toward the Ohio Supreme Court Building.

Above: Event organizer Greg Davis provides instruction for marchers before lining up on West Broad St. Right: Upset that her sign was twisting in the wind, a young participant is encouraged by her mother.

PHOTOGRAPHS BY MICHAEL BARBER